We are pleased to announce the 1st edition of the International Conference & Expo in India (GraphIN 2026) dedicated to Graphene and 2D Materials, with a strong focus on their emerging applications across key industrial sectors.

Two-dimensional materials, led by graphene, continue to redefine the landscape of advanced technologies due to their exceptional mechanical, electronic, thermal, and optical properties. Their integration into real-world applications is now accelerating—driven by breakthroughs in energy storage and conversion, flexible and wearable electronics, photonics, sensing technologies, membranes, coatings, and biomedical devices.

India offers a dynamic environment for this transformation. With a rapidly expanding research ecosystem, growing industrial interest, and active government support, the country is becoming a strategic player in the global 2D materials arena.

This event aims to bring together scientists, engineers, entrepreneurs, industry leaders, investors, and policy-makers to exchange ideas, showcase innovations, and build bridges between fundamental research and commercial deployment.

The conference will serve as a platform to foster international collaboration, identify commercialization pathways, and support the translation of cutting-edge research into scalable technologies. By hosting this event in India, we aim to not only strengthen global networks but also contribute to building a vibrant, innovation-driven ecosystem for 2D materials in the region and beyond.
